

COURTS OPEN TOMORROW

Fall Terms of Supreme and Court of Appeals.

WORK POSTPONED FOR WEEK

Prominent Members of Bar Make Requests for Delay—Important Hearings Pending.

The fall term of the Supreme Court of the District and the Court of Appeals for the District will commence tomorrow. It is not probable, however, that any business except such as is absolutely necessary will be transacted in either court during the current week.

A number of the most prominent members of the bar have requested the justices of the Court of Appeals to postpone the hearing of arguments in any cases this week, and there is little doubt that when the court convenes tomorrow an adjournment will be taken until Tuesday, October 14.

In the Supreme Court of the District the empanelling of a new grand jury and petit juries in the criminal and circuit divisions will necessitate at least brief sessions daily until this work is completed. Even should the petit juries be completed it is quite improbable that District Attorney Gould will begin the trial of the jail cases until next week.

After the close of the encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, however, the work in all branches of the court will be pushed forward as rapidly as possible. In the Criminal Courts the persons in jail awaiting trial will be called to answer the charges against them. When these are disposed of what are known as the bail cases will be called.

Corporal O'Brien Case.

The most important, or at least the one around which the greatest public interest centers, is that of Corporal O'Brien, who is under indictment for perjury. His indictment was the result of testimony he gave before the standing committee of Congress in relation to the conduct of officers and enlisted men of the United States army who were serving in the Philippine Islands. O'Brien accused the officers and men alike with administering the water cure and also with treating native men and women most brutally. He also charged that certain of the officers had cut off the mess fund, which resulted in much suffering among the enlisted men. There are also several persons in jail charged with homicide in different degrees, who District Attorney Gould will call to trial as early as is practicable. These will be given a hearing before those who are under indictment for similar charges, but who are at large on bond.

It is also expected that a strong effort will be made to bring to trial during the early part of the term the suit of Capt. Charles F. DeArnaud against Brigadier General Fred C. Ainsworth, for $50,000 damages for alleged slander. Should this case be called it will take up a great deal of the time of one branch of the Circuit Court, to the exclusion of all other business. The suit of Captain DeArnaud is based on certain alleged reflections he claims General Ainsworth made in reference to his services as a union soldier during the civil war. The alleged slanderous statements were made by General Ainsworth in a report to Congress in which he denied Captain DeArnaud's right to a pension for services.

Miss Taylor's Case Hastened.

The Rebecca J. Taylor case will also be pushed to an early hearing in the equity branch of the court. Miss Taylor was dismissed from her position in the War Department because of her alleged criticism of the policy of the President in the Philippines. She applied to the court for a writ of mandamus to compel the Secretary of War to reinstate her. The Secretary, through District Attorney Gould, replied, stating that Miss Taylor was dismissed for infringement of the civil service rules under which she was appointed to office. Through her counsel, Messrs. Siddons and Wolfe, a few days ago she demurred to the answer of the Secretary, claiming that she was being debarred from her rights under the classified rules under which she worked in the War Department.

With the exception of Wednesday, the day of the veterans' parade, the City Hall will be kept open all week. On that day, however, John R. Young, Clerk of the Supreme Court of the District, in accordance with an order issued by Chief Justice Bingham, will close his office. It is very probable that the offices of the Register of Wills and the Recorder of Deeds will also be closed on that day.

THE QUEEN SAYS YES.

For a decade the word "lady" has been tabooed by polite society, but from London come the tidings that Queen Alexandra has declared herself in favor of a revival of the word. "Woman" formed an excellent substitute for that frequently abused word, and "lady" became almost the slur that "woman" was ten years ago. The word "lady" became unendurable, after it formed a syllable in such combinations as "saleslady," "lady friend" and "perfect lady," and its usage waned among the cultured element. The term "woman" fitted in excellently with the mannish vogue of five years ago, and when "lady" passed from the fashionable vocabulary, "gentleman," too, fell in favor. "Gentleman" was never abused so consistently as the other word, and in contradistinction to "cad" was even permitted. The Queen of England has voiced her objection to the word "woman" on the ground that it sounds harsh and indelicate, and that, inasmuch as the English for hundreds of years designated their gentlewoman as "ladies," the impulses of a squeamish set should not alter the dictionary. Americans returning from London say the Queen's declaration is manifesting itself, and the most fashionable persons in England use the word "lady" enthusiastically. It is assumed that in New York there will be a revival of "lady" in sympathy with the London decree.—New York Press.

SUPPOSED CORPSE WAS FOR SOWDEN

Objected to Eulogy That Did Not Mention Political Candidate of His Choice.

READING, Pa., Oct. 5.—Among the chief attractions at the Allentown fair last week and the Reading and Kutztown fairs this week were Marcus C. L. Kilne and William H. Sowden, rival Congress candidates. Both were well received, and the hopes of their respective followers ran high. It is reported here that a Lehigh man fell into a comatose state last week and his family and friends believed him to be dead. When the day for the funeral arrived the minister who had been secured to preach the funeral sermon touched upon the good deeds and virtues of the supposed deceased with great tenderness. Just as the minister had finished his eulogy the subject of his discourse became conscious and sat up in his coffin, startling the assembled mourners with the exclamation: "All this talk about me, but not a word about Sowden."

LOATHE THE EXECUTIONER

Murderer Gains Freedom by Killing Others.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Oct. 5.—A free man now is Vincente Rivera, murderer. Killing men had no terrors for him, and when the state sought an executioner Vincente Rivera stepped to the front.

"A year of freedom for each life," they told him.

So every time he gave the garrote-wheel a turn with his powerful arms one year less remained of his term of fifteen years. He was sentenced in 1888 for murder committed in 1885. He managed to keep in hiding for ten years before the authorities captured him.

Sentence Remitted.

When, in 1900, five men were sentenced to be garroted at Ponce the authorities found it almost impossible to secure an executioner. The people of Ponce loathe an executioner as they loathe a leper. It was finally decided to secure a long-term prisoner and hire him at the rate of one year's remission of sentence for each life legally taken. Rivera had had two years of dungeon existence, and jumped at the chance.

He killed the five condemned men and all Ponce knew him for the executioner. Four other men were condemned to death last June and again Rivera offered his services. This regained for him his liberty.

Rivera returned to his home a free man. He has not lived a happy moment since. Every door has been shut to him. None will hold communication with him. Even the occasional words of his former dungeon keeper come back to him now as cheerful sounds in contrast to the silence which is maintained by people who cannot avoid meeting him.

The governor of Porto Rico has received a letter from Rivera declaring that it is impossible for him to lead an honest life, as none will hold intercourse with him or give him work. He begs that work be given him.

Rather Indefinite.

HEALTH IN IRON AND STEEL

Imports Double and Exports Are Greatly Reduced.

INCREASE IS $11,000,000

Foreign Shipments for the Past Eight Months Exhibit This Excellent Condition.

Imports of iron and steel have doubled in the last year, while exports of iron and steel are still falling off. The August import and export figures of the Treasury Bureau of Statistics show that the importations of iron and steel manufactures for the eight months ending with August are $11,000,000 greater than in the corresponding months of last year, while the exportations of iron and steel manufactures are nearly five million dollars less than they were in the corresponding months of last year, and $21,000,000 less than in the corresponding months of 1900. In the single month of August, the imports increased more than $2,000,000 over those of August, 1901, and at the present rate of gain, the total imports of iron and steel in the calendar year 1902 will exceed those of 1901 by $20,000,000.

Every Class Included.

Practically every class of iron and steel shows an increase in imports during 1902 as compared with 1901. In the month of August, 1902, the importations of pig iron were 79,447 tons, against 4,301 tons in August of last year; scrap iron, 13,759 tons, against 4,383 tons; ingots, blooms, slabs, billets, and bars of steel, $7,420,104 pounds, against 1,670,619 pounds in August of last year; wire and articles made therefrom, $20,825 pounds, against 358,750 pounds; machinery, $343,472, against $171,755 in August of last year. Considering the figures of eight months ending with August, 1902, compared with eight months of 1901, the figures stand: Pig iron, $4,676,649, against $886,373; ingots, blooms, slabs, billets, and bars of steel, $4,783,432, against $563,315; and machinery, $2,824,021, against $1,950,827, in the corresponding months of last year.

On the export side the reduction in many articles is equally striking. Of steel rails the total value of the exports in the eight months ending with August, 1902, is $1,664,422, against $6,715,113 in the corresponding months of last year; railway engines, $2,574,284, against $3,050,246 in the corresponding months of last year; pig iron, $397,421, against $708,288 in the eight months of last year; billets, ingots, and blooms, $54,524, against $671,135 in the corresponding months of 1901; steel sheets and plates, $23,818,103 pounds, against 46,859,367 pounds in the corresponding months of last year; and iron sheets and plates, 5,965,572 pounds, against 11,910,866 pounds in the corresponding months of last year.

Comparison for August.

How the Sultan Looks.

Mr. Ray Stannard Baker, in an article on the Sultan in the "Outlook," thus describes a glimpse he lately had of the Sultan in Constantinople:

I stood on the palace terrace rising above the little roadway down which on Friday the Sultan ventures forth to say his prayers. I saw the extraordinary precautions taken to protect him—the gathering of all his 5,000 troops, the stoppage of traffic by walls of armed men in every roadway leading up to the palace, then the surrounding of the few hundred yards of roadway which the Sultan must traverse from his palace gate to his mosque by rows of soldiers knee-deep. It was a strange, gorgeous, incongruous spectacle.

Preceded by his women in closed carriages, several of his sons and some eighty great generals and officers of the army marching on foot, came the Sultan himself. He was driven slowly in an open carriage, facing forward, with his minister of war sitting opposite. And this is Abdul Hamid II, the absolute ruler of 25,000,000 people, the defender of the faith, monarch of the Hukymet-i-senai, the glorious government, variously known elsewhere as the Sick Man of Europe and the Great Assassin. Every splendor of general and troopier is forgotten; every eye is fixed on the little, old round-shouldered man in the carriage, well-trained and evidently long-practiced about, curiously lacking in fire or spontaneity—goes up from the troops. The old man raises his hand in salute. He wears a red fez; his face is a sickly white, like parchment; the nose is that of an old eagle, long, hooked, high-bridged—the Armenian nose, his subjects will whisper in contempt. His eyes, what one sees of them, for he turns his head neither to right nor to left are deep set and black. Those who know him best say that he has a peculiar way of moving his eyes without moving his head, as if he were always seeking to look behind him, to pry out secrets, to surprise hidden motives. His beard is deep blue-black, as are his eyebrows, naturally they would be gray, but he dyes them. To his generals he leaves all the pomp and display of gold lace and tinsel; for himself he is clad wholly in black, like a eunuch, without ornamentation of any kind. "The Raven" he has been called, and the raven he looks. The Sultan is not really a very old man—only sixty years old—and yet if there is one impression on his face, it is that of age and great weariness. "Poor old Sultan!"
